Glass Eye Explodes As Man Walks on Street; Socket Of Eye Is Cut

While walking along Main street yesterday afternoon under the blazing sun, Louis Bowman, fifty-eight, 658 Main street, felt a stinging sensation in his head. Upon examination he found that his left eye which was made of glass, had exploded, with particles of the glass becoming embedded in the eye socket.

He removed what was left of the eye and holding it in the palm of his hand made his way to the Emergency hospital where he informed the staff that he just had an explosion. He exhibited the fragments of his glass eye to bear out his contention.

Dr. D. M. Rowe of the hospital staff worked for an hour removing the glass and other foreign bodies from the eye socket. After treatment the man was sent home.